GOLDEN JAPANESE SPIKENARD

With its Brightly Colored, Oversized Leaves and Statuesque Habit, this Gold Form of Aralia Makes a Beautiful Anchor Plant in Shade or Part Shade

Golden, finely-toothed, arching leaves emerge in spring, and retain their sunny hue throughout summer, providing they get at least 2 to 3 hours of sun daily. Heavy shade yields foliage that is chartreuse to lime green. Tall spikes of satellite-like, white flowers appear in late summer, followed by purple berries that are inedible to humans, but adored by birds! 'Sun King' is extra-large and fast-growing, so give it plenty of elbow room. Bold foliage nicely complements Hostas, Heucheras, and lacy plants such as ferns, and performs equally well in containers, or in the landscape.

Aralia cordata 'Sun King'

- USDA Zones 3 to 9; excellent cold hardiness
